

- A break in

A woman in her 20's enters her apartment. She tries to find the key in her purse but, does not find it.

She calls someone and says "Hello". On the other side a guy replies, "Hello I knew you would call me back. I knew you miss me, and I really miss you please let us meet. Let's get back into our relationship".

"Shut up, I need you to give me my apartment spare keys", she says. "Please listen to me", he says. "Give me my keys or I will complaint to the police", she says. "Do not do all that. I am coming now", he replies.

After a while, the guy comes to her place. "Hi. Please do not do this to me. I cannot live without you", He says. "Just give me the keys and get lost", she says by not even looking at his face.

"Please babe", he says and goes closer to her. She takes out her phone and dials 100 and says, "Get out or I am calling the police".

He gives her the keys and says, "I do not know what I will do if you ignore me like this". "Get lost", she says after taking the keys from his hands.

The guy walks out. She goes in. The calendar shows the date.

The next day she again opens the door and goes in. The calendar shows the next day.

She looks at her room and it is completely upside down. The clothes are thrown out of the cupboard. The fridge is open, and the food is on the ground. The chair and table are fallen. Bed sheets on the floor.

Looking at this she gets angry. She calls the guy and says, "Don't you feel ashamed to do this to a woman?". The guy replies, "What did I do?". "You broke into my house, and you are acting like nothing happened?", she says and cuts the call.

She then calls 100. Someone knocks the door, and it is the police.

The police ask her, "What happened here?". She says, "He broke into my house". The police ask her, "Who is he?". "My boyfriend", she replies.

The guy comes there at the same time. "Who are you?", the police ask. "I am her boyfriend", he replies.

"He is the one who did all this. Please arrest him immediately", she says. "This is not a Police-Thief game to arrest someone without any proof. Also, there is nothing stolen", the police say.

"Ex-boyfriend? I will always be your boyfriend not ex", he says to her. "I do not even want to see your face", she shouts.

"Couples fight? Let's go", the police officer says. "Who calls police for all this? Wasted out time", they say and leave.

"You know I would never do anything like this", he says. "You have copies of my lock", she says. He gets out of here.

The next day she switches on the camera of the PC and turns of the monitor before leaving.

She comes back home and sees the room in the same state. She walks and sits in front of the computer angrily. She plays the recorded video.

In the video she sees a guy wearing a hoddie, enters the room. He opens the fridge, sleeps, and plays on the bed. Throws all the clothes out of the cupboard.

She calls her boyfriend and says, "You rascal. How dare you came back". "Are you going crazy or something. I just had one spare key and I gave it back to you", he says angrily.

"I have video proof", she says. "Video proof? So, someone really broke into your house? Get out of there she says".

As she is watching the video, she sees the guy going inside the cupboard as she opens the door, and he hides when she comes inside to the room and walks towards the computer.

The phone falls from her hands and she is shocked. "Hello... Hello... Run from there", the boyfriend says on the phone.

She puts her finger on the monitor's power button and turns of the monitor.

A guy with a weird smile appears behind her in the reflection on the offed monitor display.

-- THE END