

- Up there

It is evening. A student is standing in front of a building. He says to himself "This must be the new tuition building".

He walks in and sits on the last bench in a class.

On the blackboard it is written WELCOME TO THE BATCH OF 1922.

"Must be a typo mistake", he says to himself.

The bell rings, the class ends, and the teacher leaves the room.

Everyone sitting in the class gets up. He too gets up. As everyone leave the class, he gets an urge to go to the washroom.

He sees a board saying that the washroom is at the end of the hallway. He starts to walk and reaches the end of the hallway.

There he sees another board pointing that the washroom is up the stairs to his left.

It is dark and the light switch does not work. So, he takes out his phone and turns on the flashlight.

He walks up the stairs and goes inside the washroom. He keeps his helmet and torched phone on the rack and starts to pee.

Another guy stands next to him. He says "Hi". The other guy dose not reply. He too ignores him.

He looks down, zips his pants, and looks back up and he sees that the other guy is no longer there.

He takes his phone and starts to walk back down. As he reaches the end of the steps, he realizes that he left his helmet there.

He turns to go back up and he sees that there are no stairs there. In place of the stairs there will be a painting of stairs.

He runs out of there and as he comes out of the building, and he is breathing heavily.

He turns back and sees that there is no building behind him.

It is just an open space with trees and plants and his helmet is stuck on top of a tree branch.

The last shot reveals that he is holding a joint in his hand.

-- THE END