

- A better self

A drunk student gets into an elevator. He looks at his reflection on the elevator walls and says, "No one is better than me".

He gets out of the elevator and walks towards his room. He looks at his reflection on a window and says, "No one is better than me".

As he opens the room door's lock, he says to himself "Who is better than me? Absolutely no one".

He enters the room, throws his shoes, throws his bag, and walks inside.

He looks at a mirror, points at his reflection and again says "No one is better than me".

He then walks towards his reflection like a psycho and says, "Do you think you are better than me?".

He looks at his fist and starts to play rock, papers, scissors with his reflection. He puts rock, it's a draw. He puts paper, it's a draw.

This happens for a while. After a while, he laughs mockingly.

"See! Not even you are better than me", he says, laughing.

Immediately, he realizes that something is wrong. He put scissors and the reflection put paper. He looks at his reflection and sees his reflection has blank black eyes.

The reflection smiles back at him, grabs his hands from inside the mirror, and pulls him into the mirror.

Now, he is inside the mirror and his demonic reflection is out in the real world.

He is trying to get out of the mirror, but his demonic reflection breaks and shatters the mirror.

"I am better than you", the reflection says.

He is now stuck in the mirror dimension forever.

-- THE END